

A Message from the Vice-Chancellor

Rhodes University strives to be an institution Where Leaders Learn. This means we are challenged to develop the intellectual, ethical, social and physical faculties of our students.

In setting tasks for teams of women and men that are both ‘physically and mentally challenging’, and also test ‘leadership, teamwork and innovation’, the Alan Webb Adventure (AWA) is a fine example of student initiative that supports the Rhodes vision to be an institution Where Leaders Learn.

I urge all our Halls and students to enter teams and support the event. You will not only contribute to promoting the AWA goal of ‘breaking barriers’ but also to building bridges through friendly competition.

Dr Saleem Badat
Vice Chancellor
